

Product Description

Providing access to low-impact, muscle-toning, cardio-focused exercise equipment is critical to improving your community's overall health. That's why the Royal Triple Station Fit Rider is such a great option for parks, schools, and other communal outdoor areas. The station provides a full-body workout that also gets the heart and lungs working without requiring high-impact exercise that might risk injuries. Exercisers simply sit down and pull the handlebar toward them while pushing off with the pedals. Mastering this action requires improving coordination while also using the leg, arm, and core muscles. The smooth action of the fit rider makes this a fun as well as effective exercise. This tough structure can remain open to the elements throughout the year, opening up all-year workout opportunities to high schoolers and adults. For those who want to entice their out-of-shape populations to get a little fitter, there's nothing better for it than installing the fun, easy, low-impact Royal Triple Station Fit Rider.
